Museums, Galleries and Heritage

We understand that relocating objects from heritage sites such as museums can be a stressful time, especially for the archivist and conservators who look after them, but we ensure that your valuable and rare artefacts are considerably relocated by our professional team, who are motivated to provide the best possible service and duty of care.

We ensure that fragile and delicate items are sensitively handled, packed, and protected to enhanced levels and securely controlled throughout collection, transportation, and delivery.

In many instances we provide bespoke, made to measure packing cases to afford additional protection throughout the delivery process.

Laboratory Moves

We have undertaken numerous projects that have required the relocation of laboratory equipment for clients such as The London School of Economics, Kingston University and The London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine.

Working within laboratory environments can potentially expose personnel to hazardous chemicals and therefore, special consideration and analysis is always made whilst we undertake any such related activity. We work with our clients to ensure that we meet the recognised Laboratory Standard issued by OSHA which was developed to address workplaces and environments where relatively small quantities of hazardous chemicals are used on a non-production basis.

Library Relocations

We have completed many library relocations for our clients, who include amongst others, The National Archives, The Bodleian Library and Hastings Library.

We understand how critical, the safe and sequential removal, packing and relocation of books and library assets is for our clients.

By utilising a team of dedicated operatives, determined to exceed our clients' expectations, our extensive experience allows them the peace of mind to know that their library environments will be fully planned, vacated and re-instated on time, on budget whilst ensuring minimal business downtime and disruption.
